

March Focus: Build Momentum, Not More Complexity

Welcome to this month's clarity plan.

When people start building an online business, the biggest mistake isn't lack of effort — it's trying to do too many things at once.

Momentum doesn't come from complexity.
It comes from consistent, focused action.

This month inside Ask Marie, we're focusing on keeping things simple and moving forward steadily.

This Month's Focus

Your goal this month is simple:

Keep moving forward with the system you already have.

Instead of starting something new, focus on strengthening what you've already built.

Prioritize:

- Promoting your main offer consistently
- Sending helpful emails to your subscribers
- Tracking what is actually working

Small, steady progress is what builds real results over time.

Of course, if you haven't established a system yet, that is your first step. Go back over the first few emails in the 7 Day Mentoring email series. Start there.

What to Ignore This Month

A lot of distractions show up when you're building an online business.

This month, give yourself permission to ignore:

- New tools or software you “might need”
- Switching niches or starting over
- Rebuilding your funnel from scratch
- Comparing your progress to others online

Progress happens when you stay focused long enough for your work to compound.

✓ Simple Action Steps

Use this as a light checklist for the month.

- Send at least one helpful email to your list each week
- Share your main offer regularly (don't wait for perfect timing)
- Spend time promoting rather than endlessly tweaking
- Review what's working before changing your strategy

And remember, you don't need dozens of tasks. You just need to stay consistent doing the right tasks.
